Introduction

A strong culture of safety within the workplace is fundamental for both individual well-being and organisational success. This training session will provide you with the essential tools to recognise workplace risks, respond appropriately to safety challenges, and actively contribute to a safer environment for all. The information delivered in this course is designed to deepen your understanding of health and safety principles, preparing you to act as a proactive champion of safety within your practice.

Aims and Objectives

- Develop a clear and thorough understanding of legal and practical health and safety responsibilities that apply to your role and workplace setting.
- Learn effective methods for identifying a wide range of workplace hazards, including physical, chemical, biological, and psychosocial risks.
- Gain practical insight into conducting and reviewing risk assessments, including how to interpret findings, take appropriate action, and ensure regular annual audits are completed to maintain compliance and best practice.
- Build the interpersonal skills necessary to challenge and address unsafe behaviours or practices respectfully and constructively, fostering open communication about safety concerns.
- Master procedures for accurately reporting accidents, near-misses, and incidents, including understanding documentation requirements and follow-up steps.
- Explore the permit to work process, including the conditions under which permits are required and the steps involved in requesting, approving, and monitoring permit-based activities.
- Acquire the foundational skills to establish, nurture, and sustain a culture focused on safety and shared responsibility within your team or department.

Learning Outcomes

- Confidently take immediate and appropriate action when hazards are detected in the workplace, including escalation and reporting protocols.
- Engage in meaningful discussions and collaborative decision-making around health and safety issues with colleagues and management, supporting a transparent and inclusive approach.
- Review and critique risk assessments for clarity, effectiveness, and thoroughness, ensuring all relevant risks are identified and managed.
- Challenge hazardous behaviour professionally, using constructive feedback to encourage safer practices and a positive response to intervention.
- Understand the necessary processes and precautions when planning or scheduling maintenance work within the premises, including coordination with relevant personnel and adherence to legal requirements.
- Recognise your legal obligations regarding the safety and welfare of both colleagues and members of the public, including adherence to statutory regulations and company policies.

This training provides not only the knowledge but also the confidence and practical tools you need to become an effective advocate for safety in your practice. By the end of the session, you will be prepared to take an active role in fostering and maintaining a safe, healthy, and productive workplace.
